

Dr Di Giacomo- KOL interview

Tell us a little about yourself?

I'm the head of the orthopaedic trauma department in the university hospital of Perugia and a military officer of the Italian navy reserve.

I trained in Italy and also abroad in Brazil and Spain particularly in the field of complex trauma surgery such as pelvic surgery and limb reconstruction.

When and why did you first become interested in trauma, particularly femoral and pelvic fractures?

After the First 3 years of residency, I felt the need to specialise in a more demanding and exclusive field of the orthopedics.

How long have you been using the LSM Med Super Nail GT?

Its almost 16 years now.

Why did you first start using this device?

This nail was available in my first year of residency in orthopaedics in 2007 and I have been using it ever since.

What is it about this device that you like?

I like the feeling of quality you have when you handle it. I like to say:

"Just like a good Swiss watch or a German sport car, the engineering team behind the product build in quality. Every part of the instrumentation is made to address a surgeon's need."
